PASSION FOR POEMS

BY CHEENA SEHGAL
EEE,3rd YEAR,BVCOE

When from Everything you refrain
When in your shell you wanna remain,
When nothing can actually entertain when You think there is nothing You can retain.

When everything around you is mundane
When a smile on your face is what you cant maintain,
When you think happiness is not your domain,

When you feel like you are trapped in chains.
Then
Your passion for poems help you sustain,
In this world full of pain
Where you are Deeply hurt again n again.

When you think there is nothing to gain,
All You do goes in vain.
When you think you have gone completely insane,
When what you feel you cant explain.

When you think you are buried under stress n strain,
When your calmness is what you cant attain.
When you feel like crying in the rain,
When you wanna escape in a train,
Which takes you to a world epitome
Of Blissfulness away frm pain.

Then
Your passion for poems help you sustain
In this world full of pain
Where you are Deeply hurt again n again.

A KICK IN THE PANTS

"Hard work leads to success" . We have come across this quote time and again in our life, be it a reminder from our parents or a motivational message from a friend, but do we really understand it? Do we really think that hard work pays off when we work so hard and end up embarrassing ourselves publicly? Do we think hard work leads to success when we sacrifice our blood and toil and end up on the losing side or when we are unable to do achieve something we want the most? We all face faliures in different aspects of life every day, but sometimes all we need to succeed is a kick in the pants . I came across a speech given by the coach of a school basketball team in Texas during the halftime of a match where they were losing by a score of 0-40(the worst defeat in the history of Texas).

"YOU CAN LOOK at any setback as a stumbling block or a stepping-stone. So we're going to look at anything that happens to us negatively as a stepping-stone. We're going to learn from it. Because we can go out there and work as hard as we can every day and we're not going to have success. It's not about working harder; it's about working smarter. Working smarter is learning. If you work smarter, success is gonna come. Abraham Lincoln failed in ways that would drive a normal person to suicide. But he kept pushing. He lost for the state legislature at age 23, lost his girlfriend at 26, had a nervous breakdown at 27, and failed in business at 28. He was defeated for the speaker of the state legislature at 29 and for Congress at 34. He lost senatorial races at 45 and 49. Abraham Lincoln failed and failed and failed. And then--wham!--at 51, he was elected president of the United States! What would've happened to our country if he quit?"
Well, needless to say the team lost that match , but the interesting thing is that "a kick in the pants" helped the so called 'worst team' in the history of Texas end up at the podium the following year.

GAMERS TAG

HELLO COMIC FANS! Most of you must have imagined being THE DARK KNIGHT or SPIDERMAN or even WONDERWOMAN or have any kind of freaking super powers. Yeah I know that feeling, to fly, to run as fast as you can, to have the cool cars and to save the world. Every one of you, girl or boy wants to be a member of THE AVENGERS or THE JUSTICE LEAUGE. We live in a real world where stuff like this exists only in COMICS or MOVIES, but we still feel it within us that this can be real and I can be the COOL BILLIONAIRE BRUCE WAYNE or THE PLAYBOY TONY STARK or may be THE PRINCESS DIANA.

COGNIZANCE brings you the theme of superheroes, by the power rested in me I give you MY TOP 3 superhero games on pc, Xbox etc..

BATMAN: ARKHAM CITY

Developer: Rock steady Studios
System: Xbox 360, PS3, PC
Release: 2011
STARS: *1/2

Did you expect something else to be in the number one spot? If so, shame on you. BATMAN: ARKHAM CITY IS easily the best Batman video game ever made till now. it is the sequel to the BATMAN: ARKHAM ASYLUM. Arkham city had everything a Batman fan could ask for: phenomenal graphics, an amazing combat system, proper use of Batman's detective reasoning, and a buttload of cool gadgets. You come across the batman's old nemesis THE PENGUIN, TWO FACE, RIDDLER and many more. With the ability to swoop, glide and rappel across the city added to Batman's already impressive repertoire, more gadgets and the inclusion of Catwoman as a second playable character there's just SO MUCH MORE to see and do in Arkham City. It's a great catch.
Another instalment of the game is yet to be released in October 2013. Now bring THE ARKHAM ORIGINS!!!

X-MEN ORIGINS: WOLVERINE

Developer: Raven Software
System: PS3, PC, Xbox 360
Release: May 2009
Stars-

It might have been a terrible movie but it actually had a decent tie-in game and X-Men Origins: Wolverine is probably the best rendition of the feral X-Man in video games. It's incredibly bloody third person fighting has you slashing your way through the `old Canuckleheads enemies with believable abandon. Some of his brutal finishing moves are enough to make you feel the actual pain.

THIS IS IT FOR THIS MONTH'S ISSUE. BRING OUT THE SUPERHERO IN YOU. . . . .

KEEP FLYING!!

3 PROTOTYPE

Developer: radical entertainment
System: PS3, PC, Xbox 360
Release: June 2009
Stars-*

Not expecting this in the list???? Well yeah, I admit this game is no superhero game. But the fact is that PROTOTYPE deserves this place in the list. This game is set in the modern world where people of Manhattan are struck by a virus and At the center of it is the protagonist, Alex Mercer, an incredibly powerful shapeshifter with no memory of his past. Parallel to the game's storyline is the ability to play the game in freedom to roam Manhattan. As Alex is the prototype , what can he do to save the city from the hideous monsters inside the city?? Be Alex and find it out for yourself. A sequel of this game was launched in 2012 but could not match the first instalment.

SUPERHEROES OF NATION: ARE THEY REALLY WORTH IT?

As kids, we used to gape into the television sets in sheer awe of these strange and yet, unearthly figures. Terrific superpowers, classy villas up on rooftops and yes, a bunch of promiscuous WAG's (Women and Girlfriends) thronging them by their sides. Power, Fame and Immortality!! This is what the superheroes had, didn't they? I wish I had some bottle with a dash of superhero elixir in it.

SAMARTH SONI
POLITICS AND WORLD

Notwithstanding thoughts, ideas and passions that may seep through our veins. Did you know that we had these superheroes in our own back yard? Sounds absurd? For all you doubting toms, they're a train ride away. Yes, they're all in New Delhi. The elected representatives of the largest democracy of the world are somehow our "Superheroes".
Statistics and votes apart, what makes them all mighty are a few valid reasons. Truant as they always are, they shirk away from responsibility despite the countless rules framed. That needs a lot of guts, doesn't it? They've got a posse of security covering their every step. And they've got more followers on Facebook and Twitter than the voters from their respective constituencies. Well, I would like to mention definite characteristics of a superhero.

Mere sarcasm is what we need to make our leaders capable of being called "Superheroes" of the nation. Our superheroes indeed have traits in sharp contrast and irony to those who we had seen on the television as they had terrific powers which they used to rescue people. The leaders have a lot of powers but are totally incompetent and reflect huge contrast to the TV stars. Today unfortunately our leaders are not able to provide basic security to the inhabitants of the nation. Their money and muscle power is only used during electoral campaigns to create "Vote-Banks" and acquire power. Consequently they enjoy luxurious lives. They have even betrayed the mandate given to them by the people.

Our leaders are becoming superheroes in corruption by creating world records. They'll make the nation succeed for sure and bring "shine n sheen" to it by making it rise up the list of corrupt nations as this is their field of interests. They were successful in making the most significant and the least significant digits separated by huge gaps in the amount they have made out of scams, betraying the responsibilities given to them.

The house from where the nation is governed, that is, our parliament, is no longer working for the development of the nation. The 15th (2009 till now) Lok Sabha could be the least productive in history with only 1,157 hours of sitting till its 12th session as compared to about 3000 hours in 70s and 80s. Our superheroes are busy in loose talks, personal attacks and disturbing the normal functioning of the house. The government is ineffective and unable to develop consensus on issues in the house and the opposition as well is not playing a good role. The opposition also always intends to hinder the sessions going on. These heroes are only self-centred and only intend to spend their luxurious lives with fun and ecstasy by going on tours to neighbouring countries as delegation or going to Switzerland for having fun and taking interest in their huge stocks of money.

They go to the neighbouring nations as delegations to resolve issues and conflicts but totally fail to develop a good foreign policy and these trips sponsored by the national treasure are mere leisure trips. It is fortunate that no nation lovers are present. If there would have been some nation lovers, the majority of these so called superheroes would have made them develop extreme guilt as they could not do anything for their nation.

Concluding with a fervent appeal to these heroes, to use their vigour and superpowers to save the nation which is reaching the brink of a catastrophe and I would also like to request the citizens to get some new superheroes before the nation is on the verge of "Super Disaster".

MILITARY DEVELOPS IRON MAN EXOSKELETON: XOS

This awesome exoskeleton, coined "Iron Man" by its developers serves the purpose of increasing mobility and strength by basically using basic robotics to enhance/multiply whatever movement the soldier is making. This means that if you give a punch that would lightly bruise someone, the suit would make it so that the same punch would go through thick wood planks (as seen in this video), or someone's face (as not seen in this video.)

Dubbed the XOS 2, the exoskeleton is used primarily to lift heavy objects, its ratio being that a 50 pound weight will feel like 3 when using the exoskeleton. Being designed for the military, the XOS 2 will give soldiers better mobility along with naturally being able to carry 200 pound weights on their backs with little to no effort.

Dubbed the XOS 2, the exoskeleton is used primarily to lift heavy objects, its ratio being that a 50 pound weight will feel like 3 when using the exoskeleton. Being designed for the military, the XOS 2 will give soldiers better mobility along with naturally being able to carry 200 pound weights on their backs with little to no effort.This includes the ability to lift up rockets and rocket launchers like they're shotguns, which means that we would be that much closer to developing real Mechs (that was the sound of 5,000 nerds -- including myself -- squealing).Seeing the soldier in this video do pushups and lift things shows how this is about as mobile as Iron Man's cave-built suit, which (for real life) is actually pretty damn awesome. Lifting extremely heavy munitions, food and other military supplies will be the primary function of this suit... at least for now. The most interesting part about this whole thing is that it basically makes even the weakest soldier the strongest one on the field, due to the lack of effort needed to use the suit, as it is mainly a strength enhancement suit.

THE SUPERHERO: The Invisible Woman (or the Predator, from the movies or hey, even Harry Potter)

THE SUPERPOWER: Invisibility

THE REAL-LIFE TECHNOLOGY:
Scientists in Tokyo University, Japan, have invented a coat which makes those wearing it appear "invisible". The coat is made with a special typ eof "retro-reflective material" that acts as a photographic screen. A camera exists behind the person who is wearing the coat and that camera reflects onto the coat so that the wearer appears transparent.

Before it's "turned on", it looks like a normal grey windbreaker. The practical application of this? Well, other than being mindblowingly, face-meltingly awesome, it is actually to help surgeons see patient's bodies all the way through, so that they can analyze every single part, never missing a tumor or what they can't see behind organs normally.

This can also be used by pilots, to make the floors of their planes appear transparent to help them land... which if they did to the entire plane would then be Wonder Woman technology.

Source
More recently, US and UK scientists have developed a technology that bring us one step close to something that is less like the moderate invisibility invented by the Japanese and are closer to TRUE invisibility, but don't get your Hollow-Manesque fantasies rockin' just yet, this wouldn't hit the market for YEARS.

Here's the report:
"Scientists from Karlsruhe Institute of Technology in Germany and Imperial College London used their cloak, made using photonic crystals with a structure resembling piles of wood, to conceal a small bump on a gold surface, they wrote in Science."It's kind of like hiding a small object underneath a carpet -- except this time the carpet also disappears," they said."We put an object under a microscopic structure, a little like a reflective carpet," said Nicholas Stenger, one of the researchers who worked on the project.

"When we looked at it through a lens and did spectroscopy, no matter what angle we looked at the object from, we saw nothing. The bump became invisible," said Stenger.The invisibility cloak was minute, measuring 100 microns by 30 microns -- one micron being one-thousandth of a millimeter -- and the bump it hid was 10 times smaller, said Stenger.

The researchers are working now to recreate the disappearing bump but on a larger scale, but Stenger said Harry Potter's invisibility cloak would not be hanging in would-be wizards' wardrobes in the near f*ture.

"Theoretically, it would be possible to do this on a large scale but technically, it's totally impossible with the knowledge we have now," he said."

THE SUPERHUMAN MIND

Superhuman - Plethora of fancy powers!! Some can withstand immense cold, some can mimic the whole music band with just their voice, some blinds can paint aesthetically and some can be attributed as human calculator.....Incredible, isn't it?? Although it is true that some individuals seem to have born with implausible gifts, it doesn't mean you don't have the capacity for pretty amazing powers. As it is rightly said by Charles Haanel:

"Man's power to think is infinite, consequently his creative power is unlimited."

We all possess such powers but a few of us know the secret to harness them. The secret is "THE SUPERHUMAN MIND ". The healthy mind channelized in a positive direction will learn to tap the vast potential inside it and the infinite resources are at its command. The two integral keys to unleash the superhuman mind powers are:

1. FAITH

Many people don't believe they possess great energy to do something great and consequently they inadvertently keep them dormant. Having faith in one's capabilities is the most important factor in harnessing the powers within you. Even if we have minute traces of self-doubt, we will never be able to give our best. Doubts suppress success. If you can trust yourself, you can make anything happen.

2. BE FOCUSED

It is easy to be distracted by facebook, idiot box or people's comments but the one who always remains focused is the person who achieves great things. People who exhibit strong powers have an uncanny ability to concentrate. Ninety percent of the people have scattered and indecisive thoughts but those successful ten percent have sharp, clear cut and definite goals.

So each one of us is born with unfathomable mind powers but the only thing we need is to explore the means to harness it.

POETRY CORNER

Guys, I hope you all are chilling out to the maximum. Wasn't "Iron Man 3" super awesome and made your jaw drop? And Superman's new trailers have gone viral too. I'm pretty sure that as a child, everyone one of you at some point of time, would have longed to become a superhero. The reason may range from "escaping the mess in our lives" to the "inspiration from movies or comics." The whimsical side of us just loves these figures. But the basic virtue of life is that "real superheroes are not just born, they are made" .The sooner we digest this thought, easier we find our lives. So what I wanna say is that don't just go crazy about a fictional character or a famous figure on a comic page. Just try to find out that same driving force, courage and indomitable attitude within yourself. Facing every ordeal in life with courage also exemplifies a heroic act. So, it's never too late to realise your capabilities and evolve the superhero within you!

Below is a poem on a teenager's (just like you) desire to be a super-hero, against the monotonous real life. Just try to find "yourself" in this child.

P.S. – I can succeed in transferring my thoughts to you, only if you connect yourselves with my poem.

The Superhero Inside of Me

I'm tired of trying out Spiderman's masks the reason that I gave up, is what no one asks yes, Iron man is a bit too perfect but life isn't a movie and I can't even expect Since boyhood, life has been more of a make believe to be a superhero, is all I wanna achieve be it the power of Superman or the strength of Hulk
I want them all, or else I may sulk!
I know this seems a little too childish but the inner child must remain alive, that's my wish if i get a chance to live the life of wolverine
I would solve the mess my life has been
Who doesn't want the vigour of Batman or the speed of Flash
but the very next second, my dreams lay in ash oh God! At least make me the Thor or Green lantern life will be a daydream, for the respect I'll earn!
Raavan and Kkrish, both are big fools
at least they make me fall, laughing off the stools damn! I love Captain America and his shield but I'm not gay, it's just not my field Can't I marry Catwoman, she is so hot perhaps I'm a head gone case, or maybe I'm not shame on me, for I'm always dreaming
but I won't turn a blind eye towards one's screaming Enough! I've found lately, nothing really is as it seems everything above is a joke, although it gleams
they are just a piece of fiction and figures too
I wouldn't have been so mad, had I got a clue
There is nothing like a superhero in the first place it is right here within us, beneath every face the "go-get-it" spirit is life's virtue, that I recall
I'll find the superhero inside me and rise above all.

Enough with the movie reviews! (At least for this edition)
For those who are into superhero stuff. There is no need for a movie review. I know you have already watched everything more than twice! And for the rest. I am sorry. But you did mature pretty early!

Clash of the Titans! Its DC vs the Marvel!

They say an El-Clasico when it's the battle between the greatest football clubs in Spain. But how do we refer to the greatest battle of the world? The battle which has now continued for more than half a century! On one hand we have the Dark Knight. The Kryptonite. Flash. Wonder Women. and then on the other side you have Spiderman. The Wolverine. Iron Man. Hulk and what not!! Oh boy! This is the ultimate battle one can imagine in their fantasy lands. The Clash of the Titans...

Anmol Bansal
All About Movies

THE STORY SO FAR...

For me, it was in the year 2006 when the actual reboot of the DC characters started. DC, less popularly known as the Detective Comics, got a new lease of life when Christopher Nolan decided to make one of the biggest trilogies ever, The Batman Trilogy. With the US box office collection of more than $ 1 billion, DC was back with a bang! But unfortunately, the movies following the Batman were not equally successful. `Superman Returns' was a pleasant welcome, rebooting the superman franchise, but apparently, a fresh remake is about to happen. (Enough of these reboots!)

With the failure of the Green Lantern and no interest in making fresh entries to the superhero box office, DC could be having a rough road ahead!

On the other hand, with the huge success of Spiderman movies (and not too much success of yet another reboot), X-men, Iron man, Hulk, Captain America, Thor, and the ultimate concept of The Avengers, Marvel is going at a neck breaking speed! Not only are they providing huge blockbusters, but they are doing it quickly! With at least two movies every year, the Marvels right now have taken a lead over the DC.

WHAT TO EXPECT!!

The news is that finally the DC is thinking about bringing all his super heroes back together! Yes you heard me. It is official that the Justice League is coming! Batman, Superman, Green Lantern, Wonder Women, Flash all under one roof!

There are high hopes with the reboot of the Superman franchise, directed by Zack Snyder (300 fame) and produced and written by Christopher Nolan, largely because of the above mentioned names. Can these two biggies of Hollywood give a new life to the dying superman? The summer is coming. So is the Superman!

On the other hand, Marvels are not even thinking of having a break! Robert Downey Jr., in and as, Iron Man has already set the box office on fire. And from what we hear, ˝a storm is coming Mr. Wayne˝! , a storm of big, no, a storm of huge movies! The first phase is already complete with the success of The Avengers, and now the second phase is on its way. Iron Man 3, sequels to captain America and Thor, Guardians of the galaxy, yet another reboot, this time for fantastic four and the Ant man! And to conclude the second phase, we have The Avengers2! Apart from the Avengers' team, watch out for yet another `Amazing Spider Man' and `X-Men'.

Can the Justice league arrive on time? Can DC pull off yet another Ace from its arsenal? Or will the Avengers prevail again! Well in any case, it's a win-win situation for the audience. The battle is set, the bids are high and all we got to do now is, wait...

WHATS COMING FOR YOU.....

1. Superman: Man Of Steel
Starring: Henry Cavill, Michael Shannon, Russell Crowe.
Plot: A reboot to the Superman series, Man of Steel could be exactly what the doctor ordered for this franchise. Can the director Zack Snyder breathe a fresh life into this series? Can finally the Kryptonite be at par with the Dark knight? Or will it turn out to be another dull outing for the Man of Steel? Wait until 14th June, and you will get your answers!

2. The Wolverine
Starring: Hugh Jackman, Famke Janssen, Will Yun Lee.
Plot: Wolverine makes a voyage to modern-day Japan, where he encounters an enemy from his past that will impact on his future. Famke Janssen (Rogue) is rumored to be back in this sequel to the Wolverine Origins. Wolverine will be fighting his immortality, that is something I could make out from the trailer! Rest, will be revealed on 26th of July.

3. Thor: The Dark World
Starring: Chris Hemsworth, Natalie Portman, Tom Hiddleston.
Plot: When Jane Foster (Natalie) is targeted by the denizens of the dark world of Svartalfheim, Thor (Chris Hemsworth) sets out on a quest to protect her at all costs. A sequel to the action packed `Thor', it will continue the second phase of the Marvels, and potentially an insight into the next Avengers! Have to wait till late November to grab this one!

4. Captain America: The Winter Soldier
Starring: Chris Evans, Scarlett Johansson.
Plot: As Steve Rogers struggles to embrace his role in the modern world and teams up with Natasha Romanoff, aka Black Widow, to battle a powerful yet shadowy enemy in present-day Washington, D.C. Yes folks, you read it right! Captain America is going to team up with the Black Widow! This will be interesting! Expected release in summers, 2014.

5. The Amazing Spider Man 2
Starring: Andrew Garfield, Emma Stone, Jamie Foxx.
Plot: You know what they say about this one? Well if one believes a few rumors, this one will have Electro, Rhino and Osborns! To have one bad guy is common, having two is good, but being with three, its entertainment at its core!

6. X-Men: Days Of Future Past
Starring: Jeniffer Lawrence, Hugh Jackman, James McAvoy.
Plot: The X-Men must travel in time to change a major historical event that could globally impact on man and mutant kind. More importantly, this one will be a sequel to both, X-Men: The Last Stand and X-Men First Class! This one will be big!

7. Guardians Of The Galaxy
Starring: Zoe Saldana, Chris Pratt, Dave Bautista.
Plot: A U.S pilot ends up in space in the middle of a universal conflict and goes on the run with futuristic ex-cons who have something everyone wants. Honestly, I don't remember if I have heard of them! But hey did you read the star cast? It says `Dave Bautista'! All you WWE fans, the animal is coming!

for the"fashoholics": return of the summers

Guys and Gals, yet again it's time to embrace the sunny season, put on those shades, find that swim wear and jump into the blue waters. But, do remember the "fashion mantra", otherwise your efforts to impress the opposite sex, will go in vain...
This summer fashion trends ,take a whole new avatar, with a lot of new stuff to enhance your personality .Include these little things in your wardrobe and step out with grace, this summer...

akshita gupta
fashion and health

To begin with,Gals ,the Bermuda shorts are a rage this summer. These shorts requires just a little bit of intelligent pairing, and the best part, it looks equally beautiful, in both professional and casual pairing, so go ahead and show off those enviable, sexy legs....

Up next ,are the "uber cool" shades. Now the basic rule is that wear those glares ,that fits your face and is neither too small nor too big . Among the latest options that you people have ,are the sexy aviators or the classy wayfarer(does it reminds anybody of sexy Iron Man, "Robert Downey Jr.") So guys, if you are still wearing that horrible outdated shades ,it's high time you throw them off, as they are not used in this century..

OH MY GOD, Iron Man seriously looks hot in those shades, and the catwoman is already making me envious.....now the new trend says "Mix and Match". Conventional colours like black, blue ,white have now become "boring". So, this summer bring on those vibrant colours like hot pink, neon green ,electric blue, and the latest obsession" The Tangy Orange" , to your wardrobe. The candy orange is a hot favourite , this season.
