IEEE Day - 1st October, 2013

StampIT - Make your mark

This IEEE Day, our student branch did the needful for environment and humanity by hosting an opinion based contest. Student members were encouraged to kindle the fuel of engineering and propound ideas that leveraged the advancing technology for energy conservation! The BVPIEEE Entrepreneurship Cell shall pave the way from prototyping to commercialization, thus giving birth to a new start-up! A drop box was placed in the campus to gather what innovative young minds came up with and the participants got to brag about their contribution by leaving a hand print on the BVPIEEE Green Wall!

E-Cell orientation

E-Cell(Entrepreneurship Cell), a BVPIEEE initiative which aims at providing a professional environment to students, organized its orientation meet on Wednesday, 9th of October. Topics such as "Opportunities for Start-Up" , "Why Entrepreneurship" and many more were discussed with the main focus on "Do it yourself" culture.
Rajat Kumar Gupta (Head E-Cell) who already has 2 Start-ups and many patents to his name took this session on Entrepreneurship and Start-ups.

NEWS @ IEEE

The second annual IEEE Delhi Student Congress was held in Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi on 19th and 20th of October, 2013. Students from various colleges across the Delhi Section had assembled to attend the Congress. The two day event was highly educational for our Student Branch and a learning experience for all the attendees. Eminent personalities from IEEE participated to impart knowledge regarding what the industry needs from employees today, how one can make oneself competent, how to manage a Student Branch effectively, the responsibilities of the various officers in a Student Branch and also what IEEE provides to its Student Members.

The first day started off with inauguration by Prof. Bhim Singh, Chairperson IEEE Delhi Section and Mr. V.K Aggarwal, Executive Director NLDC. Mr.Daman Sood talked about industry-institute interaction. Ms. Mini Thomas, IEEEJMI Branch Counselor addressed students on MGA(Member and Geographic Activities) , SAC(Student Activities Committee) and PES(Power and Energy Society).

The following day, Mr. Barbanas Muthu talked about what we as engineers can really do and how IEEE can help us achieve perfection. Mr. Imran Ali elucidated on the responsibilities of a Branch Officer and finally, there was a brainstorming session in which groups were formed and possible solutions put forth to improve the functioning of IEEE Delhi Section.

The Congress proved to be a great learning opportunity and platform for all students to share the deliberations, address problems and reach plausible solutions to further improve the functioning of the college Student Branch and how we as engineers and individuals can create a symbiotic relationship with IEEE.

HALLOWEEN IS ABOUT FUN, CANDY AND COSTUMES BUT IT IS ALSO ABOUT CRIPPLING, BLOOD-CURDLING FEAR. IF YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN THE TRUE MEANING OF HALLOWEEN, THE FOLLOWING GADGETS SHOULD BE SCARY ENOUGH, CREEPY ENOUGH AND JUST PLAIN WEIRD ENOUGH TO REMIND YOU.

•Electronic Serial Killer Shower Curtain

Showers are invigorating, but after showering with the Electronic Serial Killer Curtain, you'll never feel more alive. Seriously — because after the "Psycho" theme music plays and the screaming starts, you'll feel lucky to be alive.
The audio clips are activated by both sound and motion, so there's also the added benefit of water conservation and short bathroom trips. Anyone in there will want to get out as fast as possible. $19.98

•Skullhub USB

This isn't an actual skull, it's a 4-port USB hub and knick knack holder designed to look like a skull. But your co-workers don't know that. You just keep telling them it's the last guy who stole your Diet Coke out of the break-room fridge. Then tell them you've been thinking about making a new chair. $24.99

Fogging Jack o' Lantern

You don't need a poorly carved, poorly lit pumpkin bursting into flames on your front porch in front of a bunch of kids and engulfing your doorway like it's the portal to Hell ... again. So keep it safe with this 3-foot-tall Fogging Jack o' Lantern. The eyes, nose and mouth light up and it will produce fog from a 6-gallon tank of water for hours. $499.95

Con-ceptual Gadget

Scariest Toy Concept Ever: The Epidermits Thing

Oh, this is much worse than you think. The Epidermits toy is the Karten Design Firm's bizarro, conceptual end of several current trends in the toy/gadget industry, like personalization, fuel cell engineering, and animatronics. It is the scariest concept design I've ever seen. It's not even close.

As part of their Cautionary Visions project, KD designers wanted to focus on how gadget design can get off track when the focus on real human interactions (and values) is lost. So they came up with a few gadgets that would be obscene, but also feasible. The Epidermits blurs the boundary between taste and innovation to 'confuse kids and rob them of any remaining sense of the natural.'

A season of Ghosts

Book Reviews

Do you believe in ghosts ?
Ruskin Bond would say "Well, I don't believe in them. But I keep seeing them!"

RUSKIN BOND

In the introduction of the book, he talks of true encounters of very practical and sensible people, like Mr. Ohri who talks of a chandelier rocking all night in his guest rooms!

The book is a collection of supernatural stories, all set in the foggy, misty silence of the Himalayas. The best being 'Wilson's Bridge', in which the author sees a woman in white, throwing herself off the bridge and disappearing in the foamy stream below. It is only later that he is told by the watchman that it wasn't human at all, it was the ghost of Gulabi. Another intriguing story is 'Whistling in the Dark'. On a late, silent evening the author is heading back home. It seems as though the shadows of the oak branches on the roadside are threatening him for company. Ahead of him he sees the cemetery where a grave lay exposed. He heard a whistle and saw a young boy rushing downhill on a bicycle.He did not talk and went off. The next day, he inquired of the open grave from the church and realized that the whistling boy was the ghost of the boy buried in the, now exposed grave!!

Ruskin bond does not write outrageously scary stories, they will surely not prove to be the source of nightmares for anyone. But they will capture your attention, make you ponder in mysterious ways and at the same time fulfill the thirst and curiosity of knowing the unknown, which I'm sure is present in each one of us, no matter how meek hearted one might be. The author describes the ghosts as individuals, not very different from humans. He says ghosts have a fondness for places they have been to in their earlier lives, like a house or a particular flight of stairs. His ghosts are not always ferocious; some of them even possess a sense of humor! But nevertheless, they make us feel that there are a few, from another world among us, whether good or evil!

crazy costumes, carnival festivities, but aren't we forgetting what halloween actually is? it's the line between, what ancients believed to be, the time between the good summers and the cold, dark and soul consuming winters! leaving the technicalities aside, it's time to bring the 'horror' quotient back in the frame! sit at home and be spooked by these classics!!

MOVIE REVIEWS

movie review

1. The Exorcist (1973)

Probably the origin of the exorcism genre, thi movie is regarded as the greatest horrors of al time! With a concept never tried before on screen, combined with scary special effects and taut direction, this movie will spook you with its eerie atmosphere! Suddenly prone to fits and bizarre behavior, Regan proves quite a handful for her actress-mother, Chris. When Regan gets completely out of hand, Chris calls in young priest Father Karras, who becomes convinced that the girl is possessed by the Devil and that they must call in an exorcist: namely, Father Merrin. His foe proves to be no run-of-the-mill demon, and both the priest and the girl suffer numerous horrors during their struggles. A typical exorcism story, but the first of its kind back then!

Do not miss!

2. Halloween (1978)

It was made for this day only! In Haddonfield, IL, on Halloween night 1963, six-year-old Michael Myers inexplicably slaughters his teenage sister. His psychiatrist Dr. Loomis can't penetrate Michael's psyche after years of institutionalization, but he knows that, when Myers escapes before Halloween in 1978, there is going to be hell to pay in Haddonfield. Scary, suspenseful and thrilling in every sense, this is the movie which has set the bar for the horror stories to come! Trick or treat? ;)

3. The Evil Dead (1981)

Five friends venture into the woods for a trip to a cheap cabin that is secluded there. After narrowly missing a big car crash and barely making it over an old bride, they arrive at the cabin and believe they are safe. After finding a cellar, Ash comes across a tape and tape machine and decides to play it. The tape is of a doctor that lived there years before with his wife, and he is speaking about strange things. All of a sudden when he reads something in Latin, all hell breaks loose! Soon the friends find themselves slowly being picked off by a force that is beyond their comprehension. You have heard the story before, but do you dare to watch the original?

4. The Evil Dead 2 (1987)

To spook is an art, to scare with the same plot is pure genius! Director Sam Raimi comes back with his spooky cabin in the woods and resurrecting the dead formula. And this time it's even more scary, even more gory and with an extra pinch of humor! With this semi-sequel to his famous 1981 classic, Sam takes you to an adventure spooky entertaining ride which you can enjoy on all the spooky nights! Especially H A L L O W E E N S!

5. Zombieland (2009)

Zombies + Road trip + End of the world stuff! Leave aside all the horror scenes, tense atmosphere and the edge-of-the-seat direction. Zombieland is aptly the breath of fresh air straight into the heart of dying zombie genre! A cowardly shut-in named is forced to join up with a seasoned zombie slayer named Tallahassee in order to survive the zombie apocalypse. The duo meets up with Wichita and Little Rock, two young girls who have resorted to some rather unorthodox methods to survive amidst the chaos. Reluctant partners in the battle against the undead, all four soon begin to wonder if it might be better to simply take their chances alone.

A laugh riot all the way with just enough amount of gore and horror!

6. The Blair Witch Project (1999)

Presented as a straightforward documentary, the film opens with a title card explaining that in 1994, three students went into the Maryland back woods to do a film project on the Blair Witch incidents. These kids were never seen again, and the film you are about to see is from their recovered equipment, found in the woods a year later. The entire movie documents their adventures leading up to their final minutes. First of its kind as a movie based on a live video recording, basically a fatherly figure to movies like the paranormal activity, ghost encounters, question mark and so many more!

NIGHT VISION cameras

Night vision is the ability to see in low light conditions. Whether by biological or technological means, night vision is made possible by a combination of two approaches: sufficient spectral range, and sufficient intensity range. In spectral range, night-useful spectral range techniques can sense radiation that is invisible to a human observer. Human vision is confined to a small portion of the electromagnetic spectrum called visible light.

Shikha Gupta
photography expert

Enhanced spectral range allows the viewer to take advantage of non-visible sources of electromagnetic radiation (such as near-infrared or ultraviolet radiation).And in intensity range, sufficient intensity range is simply the ability to see with very small quantities of light. Enhanced intensity range is achieved via technological means through the use of an image intensifier, gain multiplication CCD, or other very low-noise and high-sensitivity array of photodetectors . Night vision technologies can be broadly divided into three main categories:

Image intensification in which technologies work on the principle of magnifying the amount of received photons from various natural sources such as starlight or moonlight. Examples of such technologies include night glasses and low light cameras. Second active illumination in which technologies work on the principle of coupling imaging intensification technology with an active source of illumination in the near infrared (NIR) or shortwave infrared (SWIR) band. Examples of such technologies include low light cameras.Third thermal imaging in which technologies work by detecting the temperature difference between the background and the foreground objects. Some organisms are able to sense a crude thermal image by means of special organs that function as bolometers.

Night glasses are telescopes or binoculars with a large diameter objective. Large lenses can gather and concentrate light, thus intensifying light with purely optical means and enabling the user to see better in the dark than with the naked eye alone. A night vision device (NVD) is a device comprising an image intensifier tube in a rigid casing, commonly used by military forces. In automotive night vision system is a night vision system used to improve a vehicle driver's perception and seeing distance in darkness or poor weather. Thermal imaging cameras are excellent tools for night vision. They detect thermal radiation and do not need a source of illumination. They produce an image in the darkest of nights and can see through light fog, rain and smoke. Thermal imaging cameras make small temperature differences visible. Thermal imaging cameras are widely used to complement new or existing security networks, and for night vision on aircraft, where they are commonly referred to as "FLIR" (for "forward-looking infrared".)

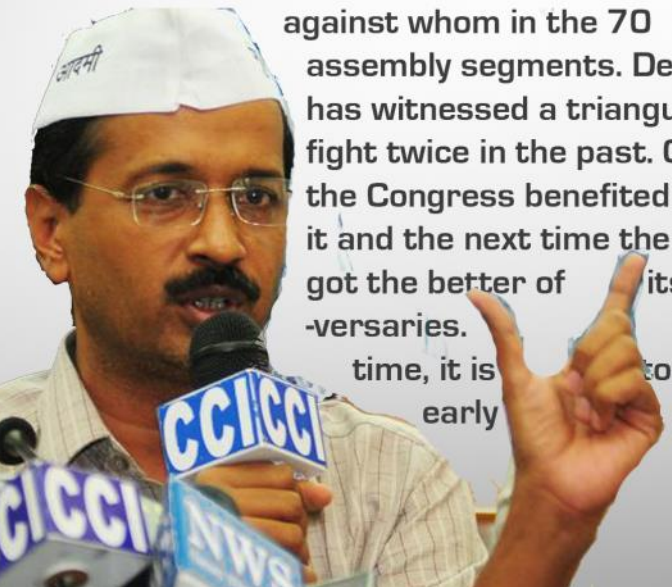
BATTLE FOR DELHI

Samarth Soni
Not so Political

Hey reader! A dull winter will not follow this autumn, for the season ahead is full of transitivity, excitement and rejuvenation with the forthcoming Delhi state assembly elections this December. Well with elections in the air, lot many thoughts may come up in your mind from election cards to the choices and further to the results. Don't worry, am going to solve all your worries herewith. Let us now talk about the major choices available this time. Three names majorly are coming as the chief ministerial candidates, Mrs. Shiela Dixit(INC), Mr.Arvind Kejriwal(AAP) and Mr. Harshvardhan (BJP). Now let us talk about the exit polls and the possibility of who is going to rock the show.

In the forthcoming assembly elections in Delhi, Activist-turned Politician Arvind Kejriwal will play kingmaker's role as Opinion poll has predicted hung assembly in the state. According to an opinion poll conducted by a private news channel, without support from Arvind Kejriwal's Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) no political party will be able to form the new government in Delhi.

The Aam Aadmi Party's (AAP) serious bid to wrest power in the Delhi assembly elections in December has put a huge question mark over the final outcome. The Congress and the BJP, the two traditional contenders, seem to have gone on the back foot and are busy trying to devise ways and means to meet the unexpected challenge. The situation continues to remain fluid since both the national parties have not announced their candidates and the picture would become clearer once it is known as to who is contesting against whom in the 70 assembly segments. Delhi has witnessed a triangular fight twice in the past. Once, the Congress benefited from it and the next time the BJP got the better of its ad-versaries. This time, it is too early to say which way the contest would go since AAP is cutting into both the Congress and the BJP votes and, if its leader Arvind Kejriwal is to be believed, his party is way ahead of its rivals.



NOTA Voting Option:

"None of The Above" abbreviated as NOTA is another voting option which is being implemented in Delhi Assembly Elections which will allow the electorate to register a neutral vote but not to outright reject candidates. This is a new addition to the elections this time.

How to get yourself enrolled in voters list?

Not a voter yet? You need not worry even if the answer is yes. You can still apply and get your name enrolled in the voter's list. All you need to do is to visit http://ceodelhi.gov.in/ and follow the procedure for enrolling yourself as a voter else you may visit your nearest voter's centre and get yourself enrolled.

Okay guys, the most awaited and freaky day is around the corner and it is none other than the "spooky" HALLOWEEN. So guys trick or treat???? Well, hitting the high-strung Halloween party not only requires just a costume but an intelligent and trendy dressing sense..

Still confused about how to put up an hair raising act and catch the eye balls of everyone??Well, you need not to worry as these simple tips will do the deed...

Akshita gopta

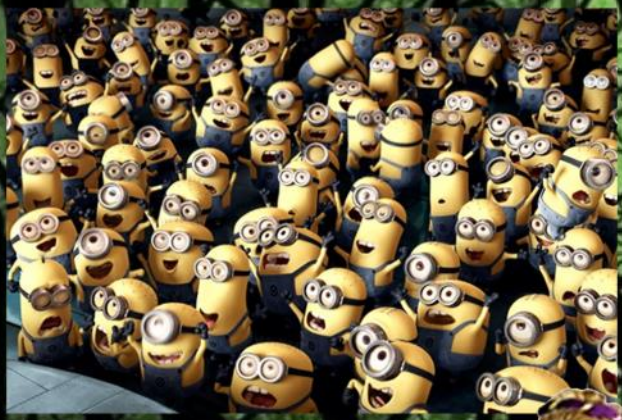
FASHION TRICK OR TREAT???

THE SUPERHERO STYLE

If there's one constant to the Halloween season, it's that you're guaranteed to see superheroes. Lots and lots of superheroes, whether it's pint-sized members of the Justice League out trick or treating on All Hallow's Eve, dudes in homemade Iron Man armors made with masking tape, or sexy Wonder Women out in Scottsdale.

MINION WAY

The animated flick Despicable Me and its 2013 sequel were both big hits with kiddies everywhere. And one of the breakout characters are Gru's legion of tiny rambunctious Minions. According to some costume shop proprietors, adults are just as into the cutesy yellow creatures as the younger crowd. Hence the reason why there's been a demand for both the adult and kid versions of Minion get-ups.



THE GATSBY GLAMOUR

Thanks to the release of the latest cinematic version of The Great Gatsby earlier this year, the era of prohibition and putting on the ritz is the cat's meow right now. As such, flappers and Tommy gun-toting gangsters might be a common sight at Halloween parties or events later this month.

FANTASY LAND

Is it possible to imagine Halloween without thinking about the beautiful fairies, evil devils, "bloody" vampires, cute little pixies and all of the majestic Disney characters???Well, this is something synonymous with the Halloween celebration ,so when in dilemma so as to choose which costume ,do remember that you have a choice to fall back upon.

MONSTERS INC.

Monsters are the safest option to show up at a party and scare the wits out of your friends. Don't forget the white and black bony SKELETON can never go outr of fashion..
Also a last minute tip from my side will be that along with the costume, carry some props and have the wackiest hairstyle with the whimsical make-up
So people ,pull up your socks as the Halloween countdown begins. Go hunt for what suits you the best and don't forget to wear that attitude on your sleeves. Step out in style, and scare the hell out of everyone...

If i have to put Anyone To Bat For my Life It'll be Kallis or Dravid

- BRIAN LARA

12 Exciting Things About Dravid

Dharvi Verma
High On Sport

1

While it is relatively well- known that Dravid was nicknamed 'Jammy' because his father worked for 'Kissan', not many know that there was also a local school tournament named after the veteran batsman. The 'Jammy Cup' is held in Bangalore and the Man-of-the-Match gets the title of 'Jammy of the Day.'

2

Legend Glenn McGrath once said that if there was one Indian player who could get a direct entry into the famous Australian team of the late 90s, it would be Rahul Dravid.

3

Rahul Dravid has a unique distinction of retiring in his debut match- he announced his retirement from international T20 before playing his first match. In the only international T20 he played, he scored 31 runs against England at Old Trafford on August 31, 2011.

4

He has faced the most number of deliveries in Test cricket - 31,258.

5

He holds a brilliant record of not being dismissed on a duck for 120 consecutive one-day matches.

6

One of his biographies is titled 'The Nice Guy Who Finished First' and is authored by Devendra Prabhudesai. It is a very apt title if you ask me.

7

He is of Tamil ancestry from his father's side. The Dravids migrated north to Maharashtra a few centuries ago and took the surname after the 'Dravida' region from which they hailed.

8

Each of his five double centuries in Tests was a higher score than his previous double century (200 not out, 217, 222, 233, and 270).

9

He is the first and only batsman to score a century in all ten Test playing nations.

10

He also represented Scotland in the 2003 English domestic season. He seemed to have been bowled over by Scottish culture at that time and even said, “I intend to buy a kilt before I leave and I'll probably wear it at home in Bangalore.”

11

He became the third Indian batsman after Vijay Hazare and Sunil Gavaskar to score a century in each innings of a Test when he made 190 and 103 not out against New Zealand at Hamilton in 1998-99. What a league of champions (and gentlemen)!

12

Dravid was the highest scorer in the 1999 World Cup, scoring 461 runs. Despite India not making the semi-finals, the top 3 highest scores of the tournament were that of Indians, with Sourav Ganguly's 183, Rahul Dravid's 145 and Sachin Tendulkar's 140* higher than any other scores in the tournament.

The name of evil

DO not whisper the name of evil
for wind winds far and deep,
deep down into the shadow land where evil creatures sleep where the echo of your uttered word may wake them, make them creep!

Do not whisper the name of evil
for seething monsters hear the winds will carry monologues to meet their careful ears,
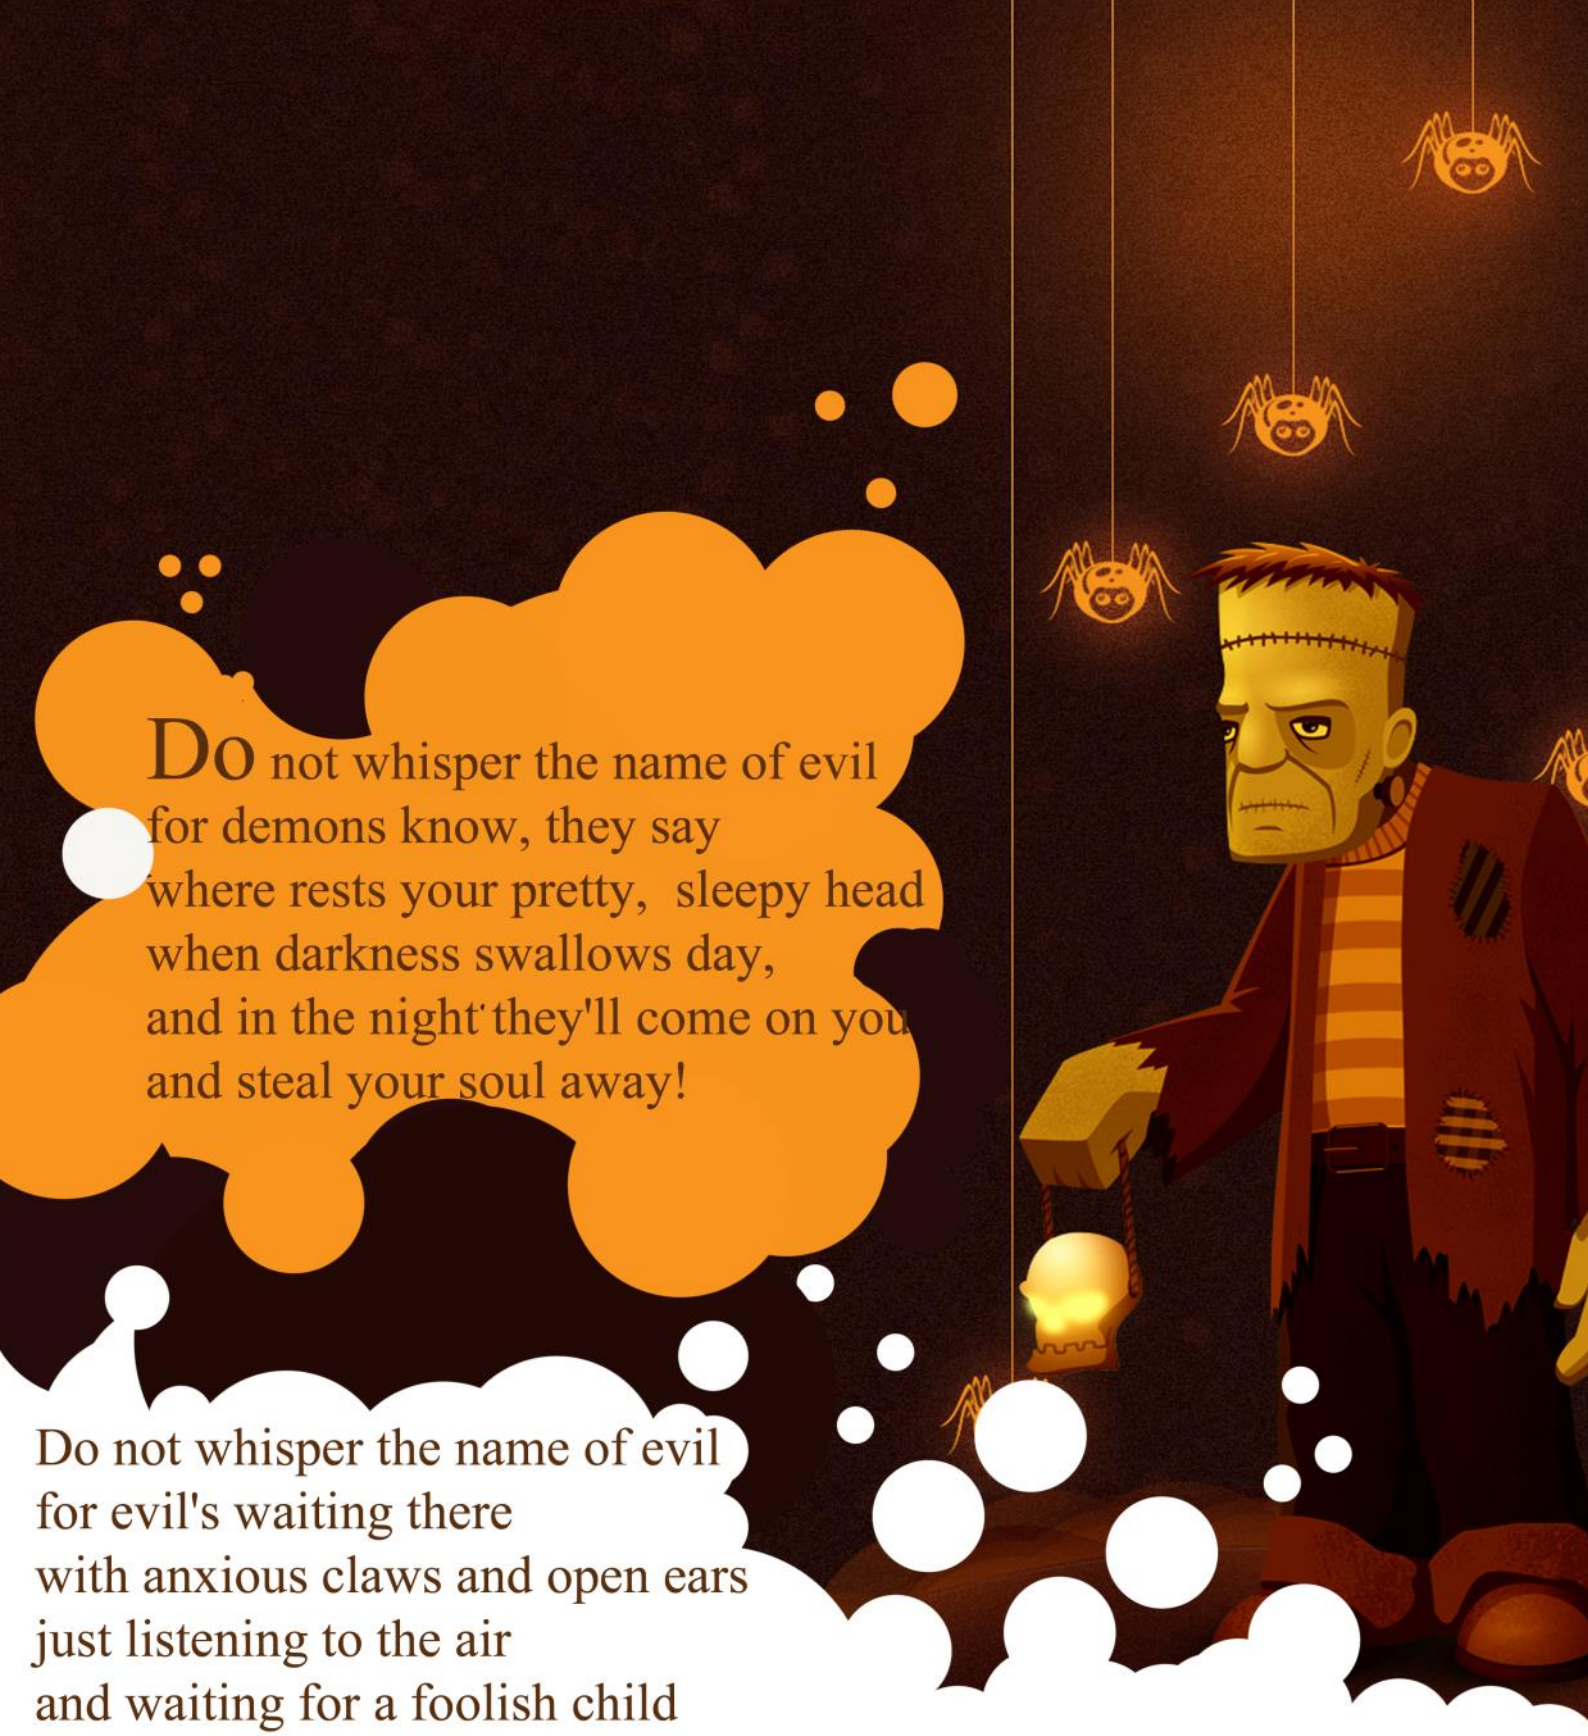
and they will rise up from their tombs
to plague the world with fear.



Do not whisper the name of evil
for demons know, they say where rests your pretty, sleepy head when darkness swallows day,
and in the night they'll come on you and steal your soul away!

Do not whisper the name of evil
for evil's waiting there with anxious claws and open ears
just listening to the air and waiting for a foolish child to whisper unaware.

Do not whisper the name of evil
for beasts come leather skinned with eyes aglow in sickly hue and figures tall and thinned.
resist the temptation to say that name even to the wind!
