How to Handle Exams PRESSURE???

Exams - the one word which every student dreads at some point or the other in their lives. No matter how many exams you have been through, there's always a certain anxiety during exams. Whether you have studied for a month or a week or just a few hours, one always wishes for a few extra minutes to do the all-important 'last minute' prep. For most of us these last few moments before the exam are as essential as the total hours of study we put in. Strange but true!

And what do we actually do in those last few minutes? We crack jokes with our friends, on our friends! This seems to be the best part about taking exams. Long after we would have forgotten how much we studied or for how long we studied, we would still remember all those jokes and the pranks we played on our friends. Marks would count but what we will cherish will be those crazy moments we spent before the actual exam. So, whatever stress exams may bring, we should be thankful to them for bringing these fun moments along.

Now coming to exams. And how to prepare for them (actually, this was supposed to be the original topic for this article but as usual, my mind wandered off). But do we really need to discuss this? By the time we finish school, we have already been through so many exams that we all have developed a way of studying which might not be the best way to study but its something we are comfortable with. So I will not really venture into that territory. Each and every student has his/her tips, tricks and techniques - some understand, some cram, some make notes and some simply doze off (before and during the exam)! As they say 'to each his own'.

If there is one thing I can say that might help to calm down the exam frenzy is to take a deep breath and let it all settle down in our minds. Yes, it does sound like the most difficult thing to do in the rush of the exams but it is the most relevant thing one can actually do. It helps the mind to relax and gather and classify all the information that we will need. So, take deep breaths, relax and get ready for the exams.

Best of luck!

Annual Sports Meet

“Annual Sports Meet “ – the words that fills up an athlete’s heart with anxiety, excitement and thrill. Sports is one of the things that can give you spontaneous and extreme happiness because of the environment around you and the joy of winning. This year’s sports meet was different and for a change very well organized. All the teams for major sports like football, volleyball were to get through a preliminary first to be able to take part in the actual tournament to be held from the day of the inauguration of the sports meet . The feeling on the first day of prelims was overwhelmed with excitement from the tournament and the fear of exemption from the meet. The prelims was an audience to tears of both delight and sorrow. 9th of November, the inaugural day of the sports meet witnessed a huge crowd from over 30 colleges from all over delhi. The 60 acre campus was jam packed with students participating in various activities. The environment was fascinating, filled with enthusiasm.

The meet started with the usual march past by all the institutions participating . The first day witnessed usual distress and delight from the players and the teachers accompanying them. Then on the last and final day of the sports meet came the intense moment from where winning each match will be an onerous task . Getting their hands on the medals would mean that all the hard work done has paid off . The intense happiness was overwhelming with profuse emotions and copious tears. The sports meet was a fascinating experience and all of us would be eagerly waiting for the next to come.

JOURNEY OF THE FOOTBALL TEAM

It gave me intense delight to be a part of the football team and be able to participate in the tournament. This tournament was a platform to prove ourselves as the last year due to unavoidable circumstances we had to go on for an early exit from the tournament. But this year was different, there was a fresh enthusiasm in us , our team boosted from excellent first year players . The journey actually started 2-3 months after our defeat in the previous year’s annual meet in the sense that we had forgotten about our mistakes and sorrow that followed the defeat and were ready to make a fresh start.

The tournament started with the prelims on 3rd November . It was the day where all are plans , strategy had to be executed. We wondered how the new team would come out and how high was the cohesion , but to my surprise our team looked quite strong after we grazed with an easy win . On the starting day we faced BLSITM , mediocre opponents whom we defeated rather easily with a 3-1 score line with an unfortunate goal. Next on the plate was bhai parmanand institute of business studies , again an easy victory with a not so reflecting score line of 1-0 . Then came the last day of the prelims , we were determined to go the the main tournament on 9th of November . We again faced a comparatively weak opponents , Ch Brahm Prakash college , our score line of 3-0 reflected it.

Then the day of the annual meet came , the campus filled with volunteers , audience build a stronger confidence in us to perish our opponents . We faced Amity Law School as our quarterfinalists , a deserved victory saw our team fly through to the semi finals with a normal 2-0 win. Then came rather fearful opponents in the form of DIRD who have had pretty good matches with one match with a score line of 6-0 . But our team was no ordinary team to be beaten with such a huge margin . We overcame our opponents with a 3-1 victory and this victory buffed up our determination and confidence even further in the way that every opponent is always outclassed by our team . Then securing the silver medal and the 2nd place came the day of the finals . The atmosphere was overwhelming with copious tears of joy , agony and sorrow. We faced JIMS (Jagannath International Management School) whom we thought to be a mediocre team owing to their qualification with as slick a margin as 1-0 in almost every match. But as is the proverb “ Save the best for the last ” , this team was the best opponents we had faced in the tournament . The final was a well arranged one with proper team line-ups , professional photographers was the team photo . This team was one of the dark horses in the tournament and they proved it too , we were on our back foot for quite a time until a confusion between the centre back and the goalkeeper combined with a fine finish fetched us our only goal of the match . The match was rather exciting where the woodwork was banged a couple of times by both the sides , red and yellow cards flying from the referee’s pocket . But in the end we held our opponents to gain a crucial 1-0 victory. The joy which came to us along with the copious tears rolling down our eyes cannot be conveyed merely through words . It was like a dream come true and yes we deserved it . In the end I feel privileged to be part of one of the best teams I have played in and to be able to stand aside such wonderful and amazing companions . This was certainly an experience that I would cherish through the coming years and I wish that we would be able to take this winning streak on to another level.

YOUR MONTHLY HOROSCOPE....

WHAT DOES YOUR STARS SAY???

2013 Capricorn January Horoscope would be excellent for Capricorns. You will have enough energy and stamina to fulfil your commitments and you will be satisfied when your work commitments are fulfilled at right time. However you should work on to improve your communication level. There will be minute obstructions in your important work but you should get rid of that and do not forget your right path and just move on. Doing some charity for NGO or for poor people will be great this month.

2013 Leo January Horoscope month will see your aggressive and dominant behaviour in various areas of life and you should try to restrict your aggressiveness as below as you can. You had to understand that aggression does not give you anything and due to that your existing opportunities will also be reduced. So deal situations with softer approach. As this January month progresses, you may find that your energy will be on decreasing state. Try to do yoga and spend some amount on helping poor people.

2013 Aquarius January Horoscope will have energy and stamina to fulfill your different kind of commitments but you had to take extra care while dealing with your marital life and your children. You should use softer approach while dealing at your work place.

2013 Virgo January horoscope will be mostly good but you had to put up your mind in your marital life and to your children more. Your sign is of dual nature and due to that you can come out of adverse situation with ease. Though there will be obstructions this month, but you can manage the situation with your sheer attitude and mental toughness. This January month you will able to clear up your debts but do not involve in any court cases this month as month is not good for court hearings.

2013 Cancer January Horoscope month you had to divide your energy into different work areas and manage fronts at same time which will put lot of mental pressures on to you. You had to mentally stronger this January month to fulfil your objectives and you should make time line of important schedules and commitments to fulfil them in real time rather solely criticizing other and himself later on. Your communicating power would be in right direction and take use of communication and your mental intellect to deal with things.

2013 Scorpio January Horoscope month will be quite difficult for you to handle and you had to split your energies equally as careless response to any of the area will give you bad results.

You had to divide up your mind in career, marital life and to your career equally. Try to be softer and improve your communicating power in January 2013. You should help people in distress to get some mental relief.

2013 Taurus January Horoscope month you responsibilities may be divided and it would be somewhat difficult for you to manage different tasks at one go. Your mind and energy will be exhausted due to so many commitments this January month. You should be soft in your approach and talk gently and carefully. You should avoid bad company of any kind. Be cautious in spending.

2013 Pisces January Horoscope will have mixed shades for Pisceans. You will feel shortage of energy and stamina this month. You had to maintain balance your marital life and your career as slightest imbalance will distort harmony in different areas of life. Due to different kind of pressures, you become rude and follow aggressive approach which will not take you to right path. Just understand gravity of matter, and try to find solutions with calm mind.

2013 Aries January Horoscope will be mix of good and bad fortunes. Due to different commitments you mood will be on lower side. You had to produce extra efforts to cut out your tasks. Mood swings may be there and you had to refine yourself and increase your concentration level. Spending is good but try to counteract that with only necessary expenditure. Judge the gravity of situation before acting and giving your decision.

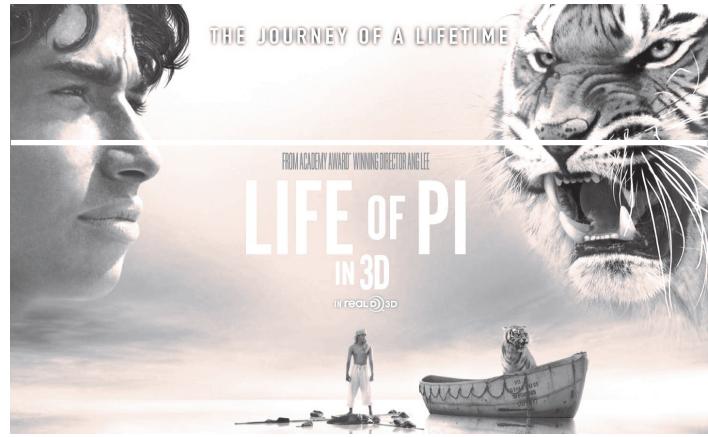

2013 Gemini January Horoscope month you should try to fulfill most of your commitments with energy and stamina. Your approach should be on softer side. You should try to improve your communication skills and should follow lighter and softer approach to deal with others. Try avoid taking any debts at this point of time. As far as your health matters are concerned, you should take necessary steps that can keep you in good shape. Overall your health may be fine but try to get your medical test done if your immunity is giving you problem from time to time.

2013 Sagittarius January horoscope your energy and stamina will be diverted on to your loved ones, but you should adopt balance approach to other areas also. Due to pressures for time being you may adopt rude approach which should be avoided. Try to solve most of your problems by clear cut communication. Try to curtail your unnecessary expenditures. Overall a good marital month. It will be nice month to enjoy each other company and to share each other feelings. Good month to enjoy free time to watch movies or for candle light dinner.

2013 Libra January horoscope will use your energy and stamina to give upliftment to your marital life. You should be soft in dealing the situation. Try to avoid rude behaviour. There may be some mental anguish from your side which will obstruct your important matters in January 2013. Try to improve your communication level in January 2013 so that problems should not come due to your attitude. You had to be quite patient this month in order to get positive results in January 2013.

Movie Review

ANMOL BANSAL

*ING: Suraj Sharma, Irrfan Khan, Tabu

Duration: 2:07 Hours

Rating: ****

It is a rare opportunity to see a film in which every frame evokes such miracles. So it is with Life of Pi: Director Ang Lee translated the bestselling novel by Yann Martel into one of the most visually arresting cinema of this year.

The story of Piscine "Pi" Patel (Suraj Sharma) unfolds through the narration of the elder Pi, who recounts his story for the benefit of a writer, in search of a story that will "make him believe in God."

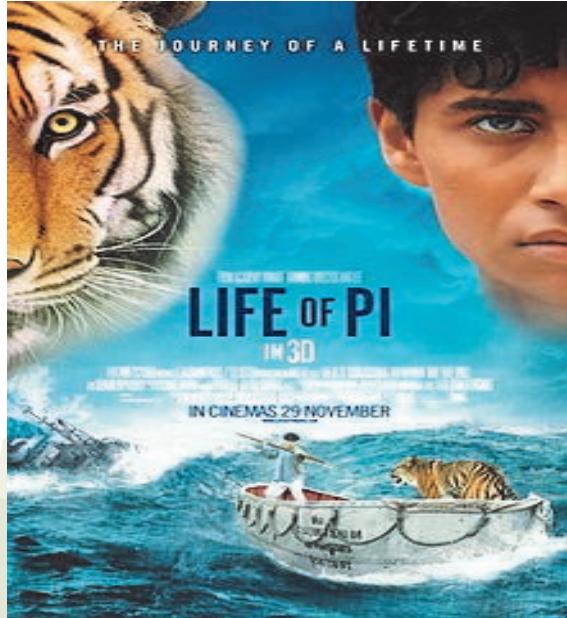

Pi's life is completely upended when a cargo ship carrying Pi and his family, as well as numerous animals from their zoo, is lost at sea. Being the sole human survivor, Pi is forced to contend with a trove of animals that also managed to seek refuge on his lifeboat. As the days pass, the group of four animals is cut down to a single animal: an adult Bengal tiger named Richard Parker. The two survivors are faced with serious challenges on their journey across the ocean, and none is more terrifying than the close proximity they share. What develops is a volatile relationship that ultimately saves Pi's life.

The entire weight of Life of Pi is balanced on newcomer Suraj Sharma's back. If Life of Pi is any indication of what Sharma is capable of, we shall be seeing a great deal of this talented young man in the coming years. Life of Pi is substantial achievement in storytelling. The film covers a variety of topics: spirituality, mortality, maturity, death, and survival. The film is incredibly dense. The quality of trailers shown before the movie seemed to indicate that many might treat Pi as a children's film; it is most certainly not. While a story of a young man on a boat with a tiger might sound like the beginning of a children's fable, the substance of this film would be difficult for a child to stomach.

With a never seen before level of cinematography, pleasant pace, and motivated performances by the cast, Director Ang Lee has proved himself a master of stylized film and Life of Pi is possibly his most visually stunning motion picture to date.

MOVIE REVIEW

-ANMOL BANSAL

ING: Edward Norton, Brad Pitt.

Duration: 2:19 hours

Rating: ****

Bizarre, disturbing, yet brilliant and engaging!!

Fight Club is a pure masterpiece in every sense of the word, its 100% pure genius.

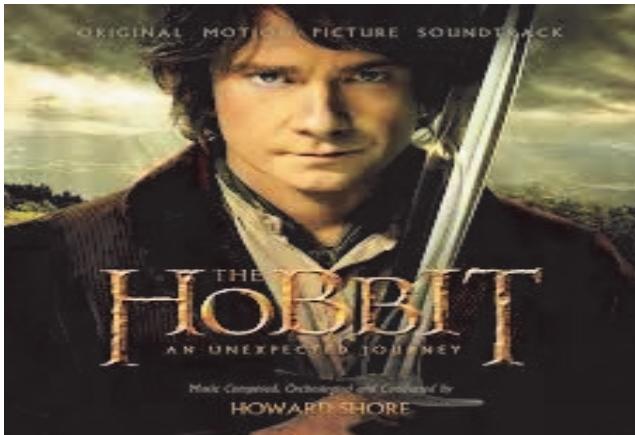

The story is about a unnamed man (Edward Norton) who meets Tyler Durden (Brad Pitt), a man who is eccentric, crazy, but very interesting, and he turns our unnamed hero's life from being boring, into a exciting world of violence when Tyler turns his basement into a Fight Club. An unusual storyline, crisp dialogues and a great work from the cast turns this must-view into a master-piece. Director David Fincher has made a successful career with a few but powerful titles, like 'SE7EN' and 'The Social Network'. But Fincher's 'Fight Club' rightly takes its place in popular film history as a classic must see. It had many levels and layers to it, which seem deeper each time one views it. The attention to detail, the transformation in Ed Norton's character, the growth in power, the bigger picture and the manipulation all crafted towards a brilliant conclusion.

The twisted plot gives first time viewer unpredictability and multiple viewers a sense of familiarity even though one can still pick up on something different each time. His direction has lead to a dark and intense picture which is based around the ideas of mayhem and anarchy.

BOOK REVIEW

-ANMOL BANSAL

Author: Dan Brown

Rating: ***

Rachel Sexton works for the NRO and, indirectly, for the president of the United States. Her father is running for the presidency, putting her in a somewhat awkward position - and it's about to get far more awkward. President Herney needs her help in announcing the find of a lifetime. NASA has discovered a meteorite in ice in the Arctic. The amazing part is that the meteorite contains fossils of creatures never before seen on Earth which, NASA and civilian scientists conclude, must be evidence of life in space. The timing couldn't be better, because Senator Sexton has been attacking US spending on NASA.

Over the course of one very long day, Rachel and her new friends, scientist Corky Marlinson and TV personality Mike Tolland, discover an astonishing cover-up that could reach all the way to the White House. Getting that information out to the President and the world turns into a tremendous task as they run for their lives, not knowing for certain who is chasing them. One thing is for sure - someone wants them dead before they spill the beans.

A good number of characters are not at all who they seem to be, a nice plot device authors use to obscure the identity of the real "bad guys". Unfortunately, Brown overuses it in this book, to the point that you just begin to assume that everyone is the exact opposite of who they seem to be, and you wouldn't be far off. If you're willing to accept all the science in the book as real, you'll still have a hard time accepting that Rachel, Mike and Corky take on the elite trained killers of the Delta Force, more than once, and live to tell the tale. Either they're really poorly trained elite killers or it's just a bit ridiculous. Still, Deception Point is a nice, easy read that'll entertain without straining your brain.

SURVIVING IN A WORLD OF MEN

Winter is in the air, and so are elections. And with them, the season of loose talks and personal attacks. Mr Narendra Modi leads the brigade with his one liner; his verbal arrows and his recent lashing out at Sunanda Tharoor, wife of congress MP Shashi Tharoor isn't worth a discussion. All this is part of our so called game of politics but what is worth discussing today, in light of the forthcoming Assembly elections in Gujarat and Himachal Pradesh, and a general election in the not-too-distant future, is the status of women in Indian Politics.

Again, much has already been discussed about the powerful and visible women in Indian Politics. Each has led a different and specific trajectory to the top. The factors that got here there cannot be replicated. But apart from this handful, what is happening to millions of other women who are in politics at various levels? Ever since the 73rd and 74th amendments to the constitution were passed, guaranteeing one-third reservation (now 50 per cent) to women in panchayats and nagarpalikas, millions of women have been exposed to politics.

Not all have yet flourished and many still remain mere tokens of their husbands. But for every one woman who is a front for a man, there is at least another who has begun to understand what governance is all about and half of them have been able to influence the process of governance at this lowest tier. But what happens to women after they have had a taste of power, realising that they can be heard, do they still make a difference at their tier?

There are very less instances where women who have served various terms at panchayats, get picked by parties for state assembly. The Women's Reservation Bill remains struck, having moved nowhere after approval from Rajya Sabha. And there is very little to show how major political parties are making efforts to recruit women to party ranks. Women remain telegenic faces for their parties at a time when media has become such an important player. So if the reality is that, except some women, an effective role for women in Indian politics still remain restricted and yet men are launching attacks on women who are not even involved in politics. You might say that just as men have to learn to withstand such attacks, women must too. They have to develop a thick skin and hit back if they are to play an effective role in Indian politics. They have to reckon that politics is not just a full-time job-one that allows for no concession to other commitments-but that it is a dirty game. This is the reality that probably makes women hesitate about taking their first step into state level or national level politics. It is not as if politics at local levels is not bereft of sexism. But it is possible that women realise that moving up the political ladder brings with it more of this. Women are a valuable resource with their experience in local tier of politics. But what a pity that entrenched difference in giving women a fair chance has resulted in wasting this resource which could have been used at further higher levels in the field.

PERSONAL AGENDA

Prof. Dr. Atish Mazumdar , HOD-Applied Science

Life is a experience. Life should be enjoyed as it comes. There are always negative things around but we have to live on the positive things. One's outlook should be optimistic.

Favorite holiday spot: Himalayas. Mountains

Favorite Past time: Travelling and meeting people. Trekking.

Sir, How long have you been working with the College and how has been your experience?

A: Aah! I joined the college in 2005, this January I will be completing seven years. My experience has been very nice because every year we receive intelligent and good students.

Every year you interact with the First Year students. What is your take on the quality of students over past years?

A: We receive very high quality students and they are highly motivated. Moreover they are studious and intelligent. They all have these qualities, it is just they have to sharpen them.

Sir, As HOD of Applied sciences, you deal with students of all branches of first year. How do you cope up with these responsibilities?

A: We have divided the responsibilities. For every class, there is a class advisor, which is a faculty. So, most of the problems are dealt with the class advisor. Very few problems come to me which I deal with.

According to you, what should a student do to make maximum use of college's Facilities?

A: The college education is quite different from school education. There is more freedom in the college. So, this freedom has to be utilised. Self-learning is very important in college. Unless someone is self-motivated to learn something, one cannot learn. Knowledge cannot be pushed down into anyone's throat. So that is the most important aspect of learning in college. You have to gain knowledge yourself, as you are going to stand up on your own. So you have to learn how to learn things. For this, you should have good internet access that we already have. Moreover, we have library which has numerous book collection, good teachers and good environment of learning. So, all these have to be utilised.

Sir, do you think our college needs improvement in terms of infrastructure, teaching faculty etc. If yes, in what ways?

A: As far as an applied science is concerned, it has very good faculty and good labs also. Only we need a reading room because we find students sitting on stairs, in the playground either reading or writing their lab work. So, if we can provide them with this facility it would be a great achievement. Also there should be common room, where students can sit, relax and discuss. Play some indoor games like chess, you know, that's also a part of college life.

Sir, which is you're the best experience of the college till now?

A: My best experience is that my students are placed. 90% of my students get good and decent jobs. That gives me big satisfaction. That is the reason I joined engineering college. As science teacher, I enjoy teaching. In science colleges, job prospects are less. That is why I joined engineering college. Whatever students are learning here, at least they are applying that knowledge.

Sir, what is your motto of the life?

A: Life is a experience. Life should be enjoyed as it comes. There are always negative things around but we have to live on the positive things. One's outlook should be optimistic. Life is not a matter of sorrow or sadness, it is a big gift. Whatever we do, we must enjoy that. Students should also enjoy learning. In totality, life should be an experience of enjoyment.

Last but not the least, what message would you like to give to the students?

A: Students have a very bright future. It is country of young minds. So they are the ones who have to build the country. So there energy should be directed towards positive things. It must change the society, the way we used to live. System of caste, division of society in terms of religion or language should all vanish. We all should live with each other with co-operation to build a beautiful future. India is a very beautiful country indeed. We have talented and skilled people, huge cultural diversity. Human resources is unparalleled to none. So, we have to value them. We should follow the principles of Mahatma Gandhi.
